

Low Rates Likely to Persist

A surge in global bond yields is contributing to the rotation into riskier assets. As little as a week ago, however, bond investors and traders were once again dealing with volatility across the maturity spectrum. Yields plummeted in the wake of Brexit and the fall continued through last week. Generally, when yields fall (bond prices rise), it is a sign of risk aversion as investors pile into the safety of government backed securities. This time around, stock prices rallied simultaneous with bonds. This is an interesting divergence and one that warrants our full attention. Additionally, spillover investing from other countries is part of the low yield continuation.

Looking ahead, we expect yields to remain near historical lows well into 2017 and no longer anticipate the entire yield curve will move higher based on the outlook for inflation and economic growth. Moreover, we don't anticipate or believe the Federal Reserve will consider rates hikes in 2016, though they will surely talk about it as a matter of routine discussion during each Fed meeting.

The global flight to quality, monetary policy and potentially insolvent banking systems around the globe has led to historically low interest rates. We are confident that this theme will continue for several quarters. This flight to quality has collapsed the yield curve, which is another indicator that U.S. economic growth will likely remain sluggish into 2017. Looking at our portfolio allocations, we believe bonds are fully-to-over-valued. Our tactical portfolios, as such, will hold a relatively low 25% exposure to bonds. Corporate bonds and preferred stocks issued by financially strong companies, if held to maturity, appear more fairly valued relative to other fixed income assets and we remain focused on the short to intermediate duration as opposed to longer maturities.

OmniStar Financial Group is a Registered Investment Advisor registered in the state of North Carolina. All notices should be sent to OmniStar Financial Group 1236 19th Street Lane NW, Hickory, NC 28601. Please contact your financial advisor if there are any changes in your financial situation, or investment objectives. Our current disclosure statement is set forth in Part II of Form ADV and is available for your review upon request. This material has no regard to the specific investment objectives, financial situation, or particular needs of any reader. The OmniStar Market Spotlights are published solely for informational purposes and are not to be construed as a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any securities or related financial instruments. References made to third parties are based on information obtained from sources believed to be reliable, but are not guaranteed as being accurate. Readers should not regard it as a substitute for the exercise of their own judgment. Any opinions expressed in this site are subject to change without notice and OmniStar Financial Group is under no obligation to update or keep current the information contained herein. OmniStar Financial Group accepts no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage of any kind arising out of the use of all or any part of this material. The purpose of OmniStar's Market Spotlight is to provide general opinion commentary and should not be acted upon without first consulting your financial advisor, tax advisor and/or legal advisor.